

Yanks Report Swift Success In Mindanao Invasion Move

By JAMES HUTCHESON
Manila, March 21 (AP) — Tank-equipped Yanks swept over Wolfe airstrip Saturday afternoon one-half mile inland from their invasion beach on the southwest tip of Mindanao island and at last reports were driving rapidly toward important San Roque airfield a mile and a half northwest of Zamboanga.

First opposition was light. The Japanese offered Maj. Gen. Jane Sa. Doe's jungle-seasoned 41st Division troops of the Eighth Army intermittent machinegun and mortar fire but it did not slow the American advance.

The fight may stiffen near Zamboanga, opined Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines.

Four Towns Taken
An eight day air bombardment by the 13th Air Force and a two-day naval shelling by Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet units preceded the 21st Philippine island invasion landing.

Zamboanga harbor, reported AP's Fred Hampson from a bomber's eyewit, was cluttered with wrecked Japanese ships and the town's larger buildings were blasted or burned.

The coastal towns of San Mateo, San Jose, Calarian and San Roque were captured in short order by the well-ordered swift advance.

Wolfe airfield, which is 200 miles from Japanese-held oil-rich Borneo island, was one of the first military objectives of the attack. The San Roque field, which has a 4,000-foot bomber runway, may already be in U. S. hands.

Convoy Unmolested
The convoy in making the 400-mile journey was unmolested by either Japanese planes or submarines.

In announcing the invasion, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communique today that the operation strengthens the American blockade of the South China sea and further severed Japan from her ill-gotten holdings in the East Indies.

The Americans actually were in Zamboanga city the moment they stepped ashore, for the city proper covers the entire end of the Zamboanga peninsula, about 600 square miles. In area it is one of the largest cities in the world. Its population is about 132,000.

Mindanao, where guerrillas have been extremely active for years, is the second largest of the Philippines and the most southerly, jutting into the Celebes sea. Its principal city and port, Davao, is on the east coast 250 miles from Zamboanga.

WEATHER CUT FEBRUARY SCRAP

Transportation problems and weather conditions during February seriously hindered salvage operations in Adams county. Dr. Eugene Elgin, East Berlin, salvage chairman, reported today.

Although there was 109 tons of waste paper and 5,563 pounds of used household fats collected, the salvaging of tin cans, iron and steel scrap and waste cardboard was more seriously affected by the transportation and weather difficulties.

Doctor Elgin reported that one Gettysburg junk yard that handles most of the iron and steel scrap was unable to make any shipments of that waste product during February. However, several cars will be sent to the Harrisburg mills during March, according to present plans, Doctor Elgin said.

The chairman's report showed that these other quantities of scrap materials had been collected in addition to the waste paper and used household fats: 40 pounds of copper, bronze and brass; four tons of iron and steel scrap and 100 old automobile batteries.

NEGRO IS GIVEN PEN TERM; 3 ARE PAROLED TODAY

John W. Peck, colored, Gettysburg R. 1, was sentenced to one and a half to three years in the Eastern penitentiary after entering a plea of guilty to a serious offense in court this morning.

Peck was arrested last month by a member of the local substation of state police on the charge which involved a 15-year-old boy in the offense which it was alleged occurred in Straban township. The court also imposed a $5 fine on Peck.

Peck's parents, his former employer and the employer of his parents all appeared in court to testify as to the boy's character.

Three Paroled

In addition, the court paroled three men who had been serving sentences in the county jail. William M. Vaughn, who was sentenced last November 25 to six months to one year on a charge of robbery of a wrist watch from a sleeping man in his car parked near Haines' roadside stand, was paroled for one year following a hearing. It was testified that Vaughn was needed to care for the farm of Leslie and Carrie Vaughn, because both of the farm owners are in ill health.

Chauncey Laughman, of Abbotstown, was placed on parole for two years after it was certified to the court that he would be assured of a job. The court was told of a plan of deducting from Laughman's salary for driving for a trucking firm which would be used to pay off the arrearage of a support order previously entered against him as well as other costs.

The third parole was for Tim Young, who was serving a sentence for jail break. Young walked out of the county jail last August. He was placed on parole for a year.

Hear Argument

One of the longest proceedings in the court this morning was the hearing of an argument for a new trial in the action in trespass of John A. Luckenbaugh, Spring Grove R. D. 1, versus J. P. Haughwout, and Charles Haughwout, proprietors of the Glen Lock dairy, at Sunbury. Luckenbaugh won a suit against the dairy last fall for damages and personal injuries suffered when the automobile in which Luckenbaugh was riding collided with a truck owned by the dairy.

Luckenbaugh was severely burned about the face by blazing gasoline ignited after the crash. The gasoline was from a jug which was being used in a gas mileage test on the car.

In his argument for a new trial, Richard A. Brown, Esq., attorney for the defendants, said that the "jury was confused by the court by the language used to explain superceding cause" when the charge was being given to the jurors. He stated that there was "no question of contributory negligence," and that on such grounds a new trial should be granted.

Decision to Come Later

Eugene V. Bullett, Esq., attorney for the plaintiff, argued that the case had previously been disposed of in accordance to correct procedure and on the basis of other court decisions in similar cases, and asked that the motion for a new trial be denied by the court.

The court took the case under advisement and will issue an order in the near future.

A non-support action brought by Evelyn Stoner, Biglerville, versus her husband, Murray Stoner, Gettysburg R. 2, was settled when the court ordered the defendant to pay $7.50 per week for the support of the couple's nine-year-old boy.

Appoint Master

J. Francis Yake, Jr., Esq., was appointed master in the divorce action of Lawrence W. Hayes, also known as Lawrence W. Hayes, Jr., against Frances M. Adams Hayes.

Other court business concerned the hearing of several petitions in connection with estates and the confirmation and approval of distribution in two other estates.

Associate Judges A. Dale Knouse and J. Price Oyler sat on the bench with President Judge W. C. Sheely. The next court will be in chambers Saturday morning.

SENIOR CLASS TO GIVE PLAY MARCH 22, 23

"Only an Orphan Girl," a four-act drama by Henning Nelms, will be presented by the Gettysburg high school senior class in the school auditorium Thursday and Friday evenings, March 22 and 23, at 8 o'clock under the direction of Miss Ruth K. Scott, dramatics instructor.

The cast follows: "Arthur Rutherford," William Cromer; "Dick Perkins," William Sperry; "Swern Perkins," Richard Altomose; "Nellie," Doris Ann Gaines; "Ethel Rutherford," Barbara Wolff; "Nazi Perkins," Betty Lou Baughman; "Widow Appleby," Doris Gittlin, and "Lucy," Eloise Coffelt.

"Only an Orphan Girl" is the story of Mr. Swern Perkins, a New England farmer, and his wife, who have in the past taken an orphan child, Nellie, to rear. Nellie's parentage is unknown to both the Perkins and Nellie herself. Dick, the Perkins' son, falls in love with Nellie; however, he has never professed his admiration.

Into these lives comes Arthur Rutherford, the villain from the city, with the secret of Nellie's parentage as well as an inheritance left by her parents. As all old-fashioned melodrama, the story would be incomplete without the mortgage, which the villain possesses by foul means. Arthur and his wife, Ethel, stop short of nothing, even murder, in attempts to secure the inheritance. Dick, the hero, true to fashion, arrives in time to save the plot from a tragic ending.

Patton Clearing West Rhine Bank

By JAMES M. LONG
Paris, March 12 (AP)—First Army attacks bulged the three-mile deep Rhine bridgehead several hundred yards farther overnight along a river strip which the Germans said was 12½ miles long.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges had thrown so many men, cannon and tanks into the rugged Westerwald east of Remagen that nothing less than a major German counterattack could budge his Americans—and there was no indication that the Nazis would be able to organize such a force from the ashes of their defeat west of the Rhine.

The dashing U. S. Third Army just to the south eliminated all the Germans west of the Rhine and Moselle rivers except for two small pockets.

The tank and foot troops of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., captured 14 towns and won domination of all the west bank of the Moselle except a 15-mile stretch between Cochem and Erden.

Nazi Towns Taken
Some enemy stragglers were being dragged from a two-mile-square pocket in a wood midway in the 16 miles between Mayen and the Rhine. The others were near the Moselle, over which some were filtering into the Saar district.

At least eight towns of inner Germany east of the Rhine were under the American flag.

The Germans peppered the bridgehead with light artillery fire during the night but made no new counter-attack.

Reds Regrouping On Berlin Front

London, March 12 (AP)—The Russians were reported carrying out a large-scale regrouping of armies today preparatory to another massive shove on the Berlin front aimed at linking up with Allied armies somewhere in the Elbe valley in the heart of Germany.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians might by-pass Berlin as a knot of resistance in the drive to cut Germany in two and that the Elbe, which slices diagonally across Germany from Prague in Czechoslovakia to Hamburg on the North sea, might be as important in Soviet plans for future operations as the Vistula and Oder in past and current drives.

Moscow dispatches hinted that formations of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's Second White Russian Army were being shifted to the Oder from Pomeranian and Polish fronts to share the Oder battleline with Marshal Gregory Zhukov's First White Russian Army.

Rokossovsky had shortened his front vastly by a hard-driving offensive in Pomerania which had reduced the German-held pocket along the Baltic east of the Oder to a 35 to 20-mile area around Danzig and Gdynia.

Already, the Germans said today, the Russians were broadening their attacks east of Berlin. Four rifle

Vast Allied Air Fleet Hits Germany

By HENRY B. JAMESON
London, March 12 (AP) — A mighty armada of more than 2,100 American warplanes slashed a wide path across northern Germany today with the main force of 650 bombers blasting military and naval installations on the Baltic coast in direct support of the Russian armies.

The German radio declared the Pomeranian capital of Stettin and the Nazi U-boat and naval base at Swinemunde, 35 miles northeast of Stettin, were the targets.

An RAF spokesman credited Allied bombers based in Britain with laying waste to more than 450 square miles of the Ruhr. Swinemunde is the naval base and outer harbor for Stettin and is only 15 miles from where the most

Patton Clearing West Rhine Bank

By JAMES M. LONG
Paris, March 12 (AP)—First Army attacks bulged the three-mile deep Rhine bridgehead several hundred yards farther overnight along a river strip which the Germans said was 12½ miles long.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges had thrown so many men, cannon and tanks into the rugged Westerwald east of Remagen that nothing less than a major German counterattack could budge his Americans—and there was no indication that the Nazis would be able to organize such a force from the ashes of their defeat west of the Rhine.

The dashing U. S. Third Army just to the south eliminated all the Germans west of the Rhine and Moselle rivers except for two small pockets.

The tank and foot troops of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., captured 14 towns and won domination of all the west bank of the Moselle except a 15-mile stretch between Cochem and Erden.

Nazi Towns Taken
Some enemy stragglers were being dragged from a two-mile-square pocket in a wood midway in the 16 miles between Mayen and the Rhine. The others were near the Moselle, over which some were filtering into the Saar district.

At least eight towns of inner Germany east of the Rhine were under the American flag.

The Germans peppered the bridgehead with light artillery fire during the night but made no new counter-attack.

"The surprise of the crossing was so complete that the Germans have been unable in five days to muster a counterattack in any strength," Correspondent Don Whitehead reported from First Army headquarters.

Gain High Ground

British, Canadian and American Ninth Army troops to the north kept the Germans on tenterhooks by maintaining 40-mile smoke screens along the lower Rhine. The enemy said a crossing attempt was imminent between Emmerich and Wesel, where the last enemy parachute troops were driven across the river.

American advances into the rolling green hills east of the Rhine won more high ground from which German artillery had failed to knock out the Ludendorff bridge. The captured towns were in an arc five miles north, four south and three east of Erpel—at the east end of the bridge across from Remagen.

A street battle progressed in the picturesque town of Honfey (9,000 population) five miles north of Remagen along the east bank road toward Cologne and the Ruhr. Other First Army troops were advancing south along the river road beyond Linz (5,220 population) along the Lorelei rock stretch of the Rhine gorge and inland beyond Bruchhausen and Ohlenburg into the Westerwald black rock hills.

Though the Third Army besieged Coblenz, it still had to cross the mouth of the Moselle river before fighting into the main part of the city. Across the Rhine from Coblenz, the towering and sullen rock fortress of Ehrenbreitstein provided the enemy a formidable defense bastion. Ehrenbreitstein is Germany's Gibraltar of the Rhine.

Reds Regrouping On Berlin Front

London, March 12 (AP)—The Russians were reported carrying out a large-scale regrouping of armies today preparatory to another massive shove on the Berlin front aimed at linking up with Allied armies somewhere in the Elbe valley in the heart of Germany.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians might by-pass Berlin as a knot of resistance in the drive to cut Germany in two and that the Elbe, which slices diagonally across Germany from Prague in Czechoslovakia to Hamburg on the North sea, might be as important in Soviet plans for future operations as the Vistula and Oder in past and current drives.

Moscow dispatches hinted that formations of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's Second White Russian Army were being shifted to the Oder from Pomeranian and Polish fronts to share the Oder battleline with Marshal Gregory Zhukov's First White Russian Army.

Rokossovsky had shortened his front vastly by a hard-driving offensive in Pomerania which had reduced the German-held pocket along the Baltic east of the Oder to a 35 by 20-mile area around Danzig and Gdynia.

Already, the Germans said today, the Russians were broadening their attacks east of Berlin. Four rifle divisions, with tank support, attacked repeatedly on a broad front between the two Oder river fortresses of Kuestrin and Frankfurt, the German radio said.

Probably taking advantage of the regrouping process on the Russian side, however, the Germans claimed a number of local successes.

Moscow announced last night that Rokossovsky had thrust a spearhead to Koellin, only eight miles from the Bay of Danzig at a point which threatened to cut between Danzig and Gdynia. Koellin is 11 miles northwest of Danzig and eight miles southwest of Gdynia.

Gdynia, pre-war Polish port opening into Danzig bay 12 miles northwest of Danzig, was threatened with encirclement as other Soviet troops striking east through Pomerania approached Neustadt (Wejherowo), Nazi stronghold north of Gdynia, a late Soviet war bulletin reported.

Capture of Gdynia and Danzig would leave the Nazis with only Pillau and Koenigsberg, on the opposite side of Danzig bay, as escape ports for the scores of thousands of German troops trapped in eastern Pomerania, the Danzig free city area and East Prussia.

These two ports were under terrific pressure today from the Third White Russian Army, which has slashed through East Prussia from the east and thrown a siege arc around the East Prussian capital.

Vast Allied Air Fleet Hits Germany

By HENRY B. JAMESON

London, March 12 (AP) — A mighty armada of more than 2,100 American warplanes slashed a wide path across northern Germany today with the main force of 650 bombers blasting military and naval installations on the Baltic coast in direct support of the Russian armies.

The German radio declared the Pomeranian capital of Stettin and the Nazi U-boat and naval base at Swinemunde, 35 miles northeast of Stettin, were the targets.

An RAF spokesman credited Allied bombers based in Britain with laying waste to more than 450 square miles of the Ruhr. Swinemunde is the naval base and outer harbor for Stettin and is only 15 miles from where the most advanced Russian troops were last reported. Red Army troops meanwhile are hammering at the gates of Stettin.

The remainder of the bomber fleet split up for attacks on railway yards behind the decimated Ruhr Valley, the Eighth Air Force announcement said.

The total force sent out on the 28th successive day of attacks on the Reich was better than 1,350 heavy bombers with an escort of 750 fighters.

In addition to the Baltic attacks other heavies battered half a dozen towns between Frankfurt-on-Main and the Ruhr which turn out the bulk of the German war materials. They included Siegen, Betzdorf, Dillenburg, Wetzlar, Friedburg and Marburg.

Good Evening
The Nazis are learning about bulges from another angle now.

SAYS GERMANY IS STUNNED BY RHINE CROSSING

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press War Analyst)

The Allied press in crossing the Rhine has so stunned Germany that the Nazi leaders trotted out Der Fuehrer (or his ghost) again yesterday in an effort to bolster public morale by a personal appeal—which offered the despairing advice to hang on until the United Nations get tired and quit.

This appeal—which was in the form of a proclamation read for the Nazi dictator—wasn't surprising. It was obvious from the first that our establishment of a bridgehead on the last bank of this last great western barrier to the heart of the Reich would be a tremendous shock to the general morale of the country. Indeed it may well be that the effect on morale will even exceed the military advantage to the Allies.

Of course the Remagen crossing is a great victory—or will be if we continue to hold our bridge-head—whatever way you look at it. However, we shouldn't regard it as the final decisive blow which in itself can wind up the war overnight.

This bridgehead is considerably further south than the Ruhr zone were the major Allied blows were (and probably still are) to be struck. Moreover, it's in a rugged, hilly country which aids enemy defense, and our troops are likely to have a tough job fighting their way into the open.

We still are waiting for the Hitlerites to stage their major counter-attack against the bridgehead. The assaults which they've made so far have been minor affairs, although they have massed a huge amount of artillery that is pouring a steady stream of shells into our position.

As I pointed out last week, the speed with which Nazi Field Marshal Von Rundstedt strikes, and the weight of his counter-blow, will give us a fair indication of how well he has been able to reorganize his armies after their very costly retreat across the Rhine under attack. If Rundstedt can't meet this emergency of the bridgehead, then he is indeed in a bad way. Watch it!

We have here a rather paradoxical situation in which the Allied high command likely hopes Rundstedt will make a strong attack on the bridgehead. The point is that if he does so he will have to withdraw troops from the defense of strategic sectors of the Rhine farther north.

Now that's vastly important to General Eisenhower. Today's news-reports from the front confirm my suggestion of last week that he presumably is preparing to make other crossings of the river on his northern flank. They will be difficult and dangerous amphibious operations at the best, and any weakening of the German forces on the east side of the Rhine will vastly facilitate the Allied task. As for Rundstedt, General Ike has him on a bad spot. If the German commander doesn't withdraw troops from the north he won't have strength for a major attack on the beachhead; if he does withdraw them, he lowers his guard in the Ruhr area.

The great Ruhr industrial center—Nazi Germany's chief source of supplies—is Eisenhower's immediate main objective. The heart of the Ruhr lies opposite the Allied northern flank on the front held by the Canadian First Army and the U. S. Ninth. The Germans are expecting a crossing or crossings in this sector—and I think they're right. Also don't overlook the possibility of that Allied airborne Army coming into play, and even of an amphibious invasion from the North sea, perhaps in the Ham-burg area.

DRINK PRICES TO BE POSTED BY APRIL 16TH

All eating or drinking establishments that serve beer and other malt beverages and alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises will be required on or before April 16, to put up official OPA posters, listing ceiling prices for these drinks, the OPA announced today.

Two posters will be provided, one for beer, ale, porter, or stout sold by the bottle or by the glass and the other for 14 types of alcoholic beverages, commonly known as "bar liquors." Each establishment is required to post its ceiling prices for as many of these items as it sells.

Both posters will set forth the number of ounces of the drink or bottle for which the posted price is the legal ceiling. In the case of highballs, however, the posted size will represent the number of ounces of whisky to be used in the drink.

Print New Posters

The new posting requirements apply to all types of eating and drinking establishments governed by the national restaurant regulation and which serve malt and alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises. Retailers selling these beverages by the bottle for consumption elsewhere are not affected unless they also serve beverages to be consumed on the premises.

The posted ceiling prices may be no higher than the lawful ceiling previously filed with War Price and Rationing Boards, plus any increases granted by OPA for Federal taxes on those beverages. In general these ceiling are the prices charged by each establishment during April 4-10, 1943.

The new posters are not yet available, OPA said. It is expected that the printing of them will not be completed until early in April. They will then be distributed by War Price and Rationing Boards to all establishments affected so that they can be filled in and put up by April 16.

New Food Agency Is Set Up By Byrnes

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Mounting demands abroad for American food in the face of diminishing supplies today brought about a new super-allocation agency to look after minimum home front needs.

War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes set up the group and designated Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley to head it.

Byrnes acted at the insistence of the War Food Administration, which heretofore held the assignment of dividing existing stocks among various claimants. WFA appealed to the war mobilizer after a tabulation of second quarter requests for domestic military and foreign relief needs failed to balance with supplies of meats, fats and sugar expected to be on hand.

In creating the committee yesterday, Byrnes directed that no governmental approval be made without its approval except for "essential military purposes such as direct lend-lease and supplies in the wake of battle." Private exports already are under control.

SAYS GERMANY IS STUNNED BY RHINE CROSSING

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)

The Allied coup in crossing the Rhine has so stunned Germany that the Nazi leaders trotted out Der Fuehrer (or his ghost) again yesterday in an effort to bolster public morale by a personal appeal—which offered the despairing advice to hang on until the United Nations get tired and quit.

This appeal—which was in the form of a proclamation read for the Nazi dictator—isn't surprising. It was obvious from the first that our establishment of a bridgehead on the last bank of this great western barrier to the heart of the Reich would be a tremendous shock to the general morale of the country. Indeed it may well be that the effect on morale will even exceed the military advantage to the Allies.

Of course the Remagen crossing is a great victory—or will be if we continue to hold our bridge-head—whatever you look at it. However, we shouldn't regard it as the final decisive blow which in itself can wind up the war overnight.

This bridgehead is considerably further south than the Ruhr zone were the major Allied blows were (and probably still are) to be struck. Moreover, it's in a rugged, hilly country which aids enemy defense, and our troops are likely to have a tough job fighting their way into the open.

We still are waiting for the Hitlerites to stage their major counter-attack against the bridgehead. The assaults which they've made so far have been minor affairs, although they have massed a huge amount of artillery that is pouring a steady stream of shells into our position.

As I pointed out last week, the speed with which Nazi Field Marshal Von Rundstedt strikes, and the weight of his counter-blow, will give us a fair indication of how well he has been able to reorganize his armies after their very costly retreat across the Rhine under attack. If Rundstedt can't meet this emergency of the bridgehead, then he is indeed in a bad way. Watch it!

We have here a rather paradoxical situation in which the Allied high command likely hopes Rundstedt will make a strong attack on the bridgehead. The point is that if he does so he will have to withdraw troops from the defense of strategic sectors of the Rhine farther north.

Now that's vastly important to General Eisenhower. Today's news-reports from the front confirm my suggestion of last week that he presumably is preparing to make other crossings of the river on his northern flank. They will be difficult and dangerous amphibious operations at the best, and any weakening of the German forces on the east side of the Rhine will vastly facilitate the Allied task. As for Rundstedt, General Ike has him on a bad spot. If the German commander doesn't withdraw troops from the north he won't have strength for a major attack on the beachhead; if he does withdraw them, he lowers his guard in the Ruhr area.

The great Ruhr industrial center—Nazism's chief source of supplies—is Eisenhower's immediate main objective. The heart of the Ruhr lies opposite the Allied northern flank on the front held by the Canadian First Army and the U. S. Ninth. The Germans are expecting a crossing or crossings in this sector—and I think they're right. Also don't overlook the possibility of that Allied airborne Army coming into play, and even of an amphibious invasion from the North sea, perhaps in the Hamburg area.

DRINK PRICES TO BE POSTED BY APRIL 16TH

All eating or drinking establishments that serve beer and other malt beverages and alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises will be required on or before April 16, to put up official OPA posters, listing ceiling prices for these drinks, the OPA announced today.

Two posters will be provided, one for beer, ale, porter, or stout sold by the bottle or by the glass and the other for 14 types of alcoholic beverages, commonly known as "bar liquors." Each establishment is required to post its ceiling prices for as many of these items as it sells.

Both posters will set forth the number of ounces of the drink or bottle for which the posted price is the legal ceiling. In the case of highballs, however, the posted size will represent the number of ounces of whisky to be used in the drink.

Print New Posters

The new posting requirements apply to all types of eating and drinking establishments governed by the national restaurant regulation and which serve malt and alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises. Retailers selling these beverages by the bottle for consumption elsewhere are not affected unless they also serve beverages to be consumed on the premises.

The posted ceiling prices may be no higher than the lawful ceiling previously filed with War Price and Rationing Boards, plus any increases granted by OPA for Federal taxes on those beverages. In general these ceiling are the prices charged by each establishment during April 4-10, 1943.

The new posters are not yet available, OPA said. It is expected that the printing of them will not be completed until early in April. They will then be distributed by War Price and Rationing Boards to all establishments affected so that they can be filled in and put up by April 16.

Three $200 bequests to a college and two charitable causes were included in the will of the late Ellen B. Trimmer, of Huntingdon township, filed for probate this morning at the office of the register and recorder.

The bequests were to Huntingdon Central college (United Brethren college) in Indiana, the "Foreign Missionary cause in China" and to the "Milton Wright home." George W. Howe, was named executor of the estate which was valued at about $650 in personal property.

WAR PRISONERS IN THIS COUNTRY ARE LABOR AID

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, March 12 (AP)—This government has realized more than 102 million dollars from the work of war prisoners in this country.

This means:

1. $80,000,000 saved by the government through the work of war prisoners—ranging from watch repairing to common labor—around army camps and posts.

2. $22,000,000 paid the government by farmers and contractors who hired the prisoners.

First Prisoner Was Jap

There are over 358,000 prisoners here: 306,000 Germans, 50,000 Italians, 2,800 Japanese. Our first prisoner was a Japanese manning a baby submarine in Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941.

This information, and what follows, is from Maj. Gen. Archer L. Lerch, provost marshal general. He disclosed the facts and figures in a recent speech.

Fifty-six war prisoners have been shot trying to escape; 35 died, 21 were wounded. Of 1,350 escapes, all but 12—6 Germans, 6 Italians—were back in custody by March 1.

Most of the escapes are walk-aways from a job. Most are rounded up shortly afterwards.

Paid in Coupons

For the work they do the war prisoners get 80 cents a day, not in cash but in "canteen coupons" which they can use for purchasing things in army prisoner-of-war camps. Germany pays American war prisoners about the same for work they do. According to an agreement between the two countries.

This doesn't mean you, a farmer, can hire a prisoner for 80 cents a day. You must pay to the government whatever the prevailing civilian wage rate is for the work to be done. The government then pays the prisoner in canteen coupons.

You can't hire a prisoner if civilian labor is available. The War Manpower Commission has to approve the hiring, notifies the army, and sets the rate of pay.

Helps Our Boys

War prisoners cannot be used on tasks directly related to war operations. This is in accordance with the Geneva Convention, worked out by various nations in 1929 and approved by our Senate in 1932.

General Lerch says the War Department has abundant evidence to prove our treatment of German War prisoners has had a direct effect in securing better treatment for American prisoners in Germany.

He says American war prisoners in Germany receive between 1,800 and 2,000 calories of food a day—the same received by German civilians and German soldiers in base camps—and through weekly Red Cross parcels get their total diet boosted to a daily caloric intake of 3,500, or as much as the average American civilian consumers.

Asks Probe Of Finance Companies

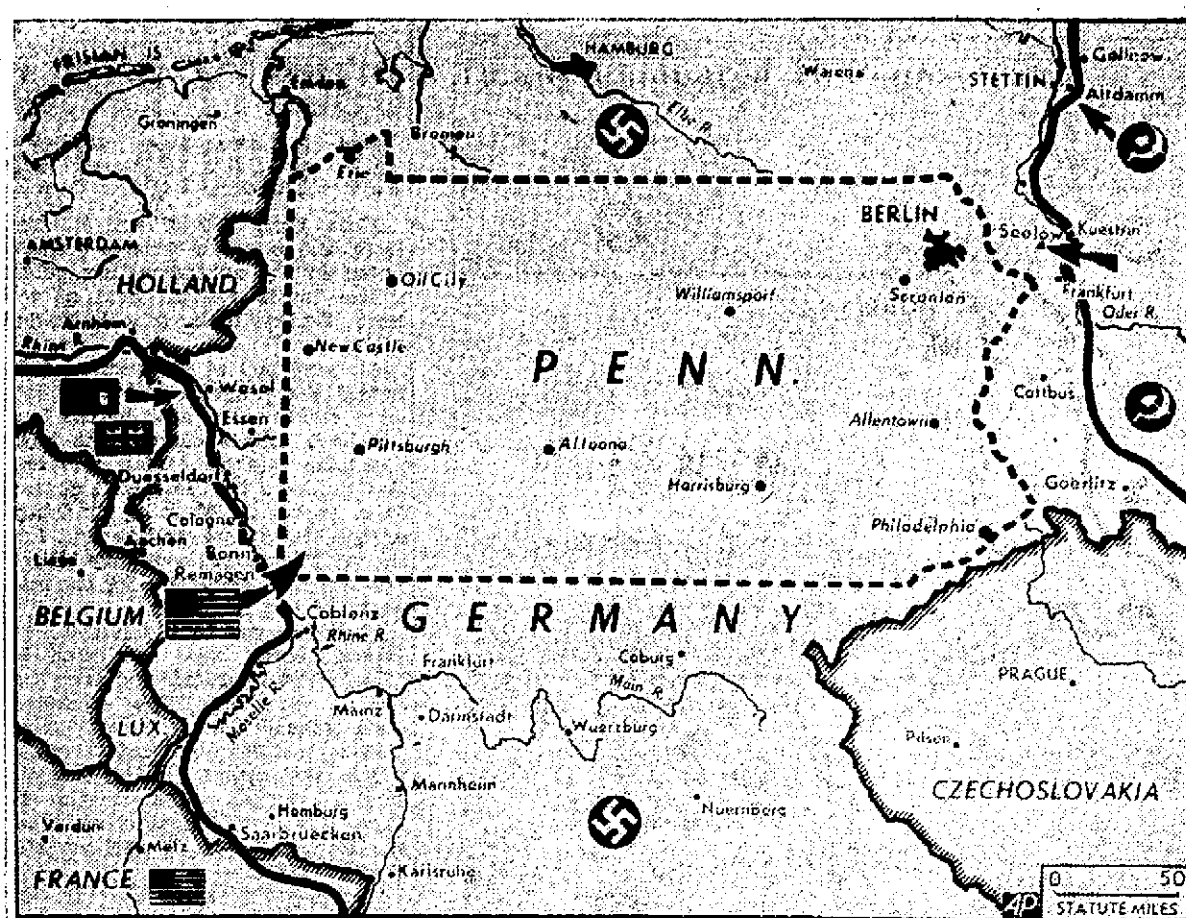

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Governor Martin asked the general assembly today to authorize an investigation into what he called "sharp practices" by some finance and consumer credit companies in Pennsylvania.

The Governor drafted a legislative resolution ordering the inquiry with a view to obtaining legislation to protect business concerns and returning servicemen who may make installment purchases. Returning veterans, the resolution said, may be "unable financially to obtain their just aims without resorting to installment purchases, and accordingly may become the victims of the designing manipulations of dishonest finance companies and associations."

Front Lines In Germany Compared To Pennsylvania

An outline map of Pennsylvania has been superimposed on this map of Germany to show the relation of the eastern and western fronts (heavy solid lines) to an area of comparable size in the United States. If Pennsylvania were the unconquered territory, Americans now driving across the Rhine river bridgehead at Remagen would be entering the southwest corner of the state, and Russians attacking German Oder river defenses would be driving toward the northeastern corner.

German Prisoner Strikes A Final Blow

A German prisoner who exploded a grenade while being searched by his American captors lies dead on the ground (right center). Four doughboys have been wounded by the blast. One, near foot of tree at left, is struggling to rise. The man standing near him can not help him, he has been badly wounded. The two other Americans are slightly wounded and dazed but remain on their feet.

JAP WARPLANE CENTER IS HIT BY SUPERFORTS

By VERN HAUGLAND

21st Bomber Command Headquarters, Guam, March 12 (AP)—Speeding over their target at only 5,000 feet altitude, 300 giant B-29's poured 2,000 tons of incendiary bombs on Nagoya, Japan's greatest warplane producing center and third largest city, today.

Pilots said they started raging fires which converted a five-square miles area into a hellish inferno and raged unchecked hours afterward. Radio Tokyo admitted the flames burned 10 hours, but claimed they were controlled by 10 a. m.

The first Superfortresses struck Nagoya just after midnight, Tokyo time—barely 48 hours after their record 2,300-ton incendiary raid on a 15-square mile area of central Tokyo. Fires from Saturday's holocaust still were smoldering in the Japanese capital.

Plane Building Center

Some of the first pilots returning from Nagoya said the raid did not appear as destructive as Saturday's devastation of the heart of Tokyo. However, many saw only the earliest fires started.

The crew of Capt. Walter Timm, (3405 Lake Road), Milwaukee, Ore., said they could see fires for 90 miles. Timm's B-29 flew so low (possible 5,000 feet) that his left gunner, Sgt. Ben Moffa, (7306 Federal street), Philadelphia, shot out a searchlight with .50 caliber machinegun fire.

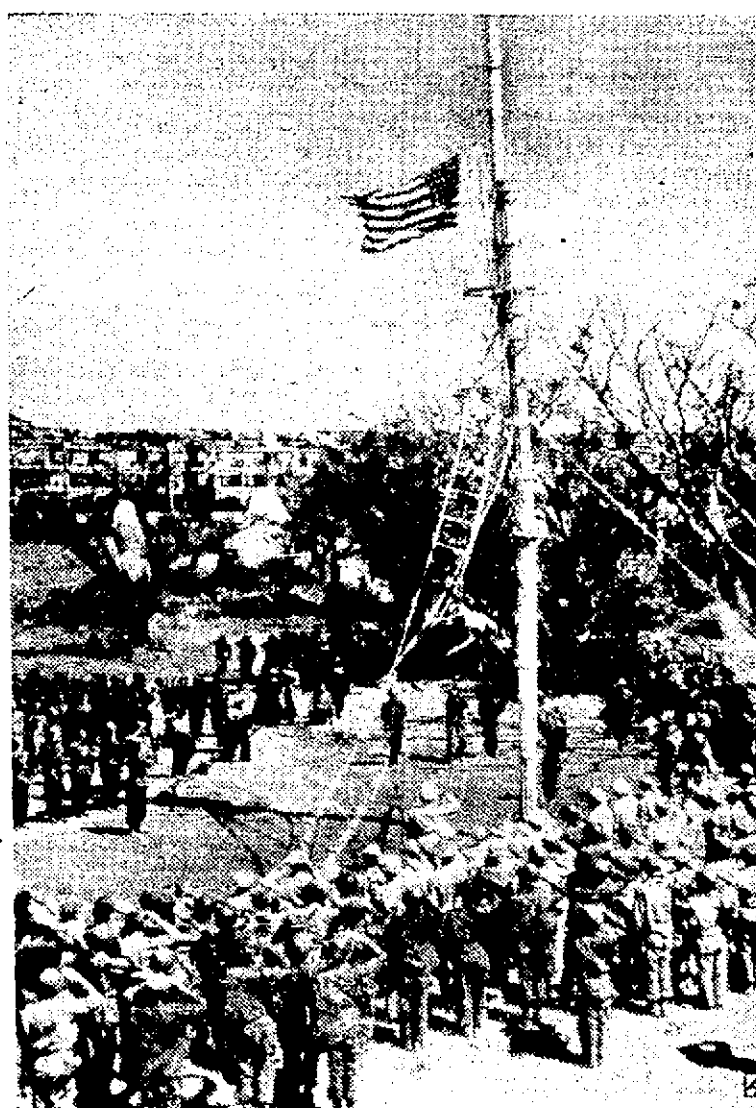

With two-thirds of the B-29's back on their fields, Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, said "it apparently was a very good raid."

Nagoya produces 40 to 50 per cent of all of Japan's warplanes and combat plane engines. That industry, vital to Japan's aerial warfare, was not the only prime target. Also in the bombed area were factories producing important railway equipment, machine tools, bearings, tanks, motor vehicles and processed foods. The city also has an important port.

Leaves From Diary Of War Correspondent

By HAL BOYLE

On the Rhine, March 9 (Delayed) (AP)—With the exception of the great tank battle at El Alamein, probably no tank engagement in World War II will be remembered longer than the dashing coup which first put the American Army across the Rhine at Remagen.

It was accomplished by the U. S. Ninth Armored Division, a battle-field "ugly duckling."

It is no exaggeration to say that this speedy fording of the Rhine at a comparatively undefended point by tanks and infantrymen and engineers who knew there was strong likelihood the dynamite-laden bridge would blow up under them at any moment has saved the American nation 5,000 dead and 10,000 wounded.

Advantage of Surprise

That is one full division—but Allied commanders must have been prepared to pay the price of 15,000 casualties to gain a foothold on the eastern bank of the Rhine for a final series of smashes to end the war.

If the Nazis had been given time to reorganize and prepare defensive positions on their western watery frontier they could have made any invasion force pay such a bitter price.

The Ninth Armored has proven once more that old battlefield adage that only by surprising the enemy can you gain much from him cheaply.

It is an outfit comparatively new in combat—one of the later streamlined divisions looked down upon somewhat as a "little brother" by some of the older, heavier outfits like the First, Second and Third Armored Divisions which pack more wallop. But in the "battle of the bulge" the Ninth showed—as did the Seventh Armored, another streamlined division—it could throw plenty of punch.

Fought in Bulge

In the present battle from the Roer river to the Rhine, the Ninth also performed well. Before immortalizing itself by carving out the American springboard across the Rhine, it drove 30 miles in seven days against considerable resistance and rounded up more than 2,000 prisoners.

The Ninth was activated at Camp Funston, Kans., in July, 1943, and after training in California and in maneuvers at Camp Polk, La., it arrived in England last August. The next month it moved into Luxembourg where it played a defensive role along the Siegfried line until Von Rundstedt broke through the American Ardennes line in mid-December.

The Ninth was split into three combat commands and each fought well. Combat Command AAA battled to halt the German tide at the Luxembourg-Belgian border. Combat Command BBB—the same unit which seized the Remagen bridge two days ago—teamed with the Seventh Armored to halt the enemy for vital days in the heroic defense of St. Vith. And Combat Command RRR fought shoulder to shoulder with the 101st Airborne Division in another famous siege—Bastogne, the town that broke the German Army's heart.

The division is commanded by Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, 55, who like General Hodges served as a battalion commander of the Sixth Infantry in France during the last war. They led adjoining battalions. Leonard is a native of Toledo, Ohio. His wife lives at San Antonio, Texas.

Wears Missouri Label

The division's deputy commander is Brig. Gen. William M. Hoge, a combat engineer in the First World War who is best known to the public as a builder of the Alcan highway in Alaska, a milestone in military road construction.

He commanded a special engineer brigade on one of the Normandy beaches last June. He was there at "H" hour on "D" day—and he was right there at "H" hour again two days ago when his boys went over the Rhine.

Hoge wears the Missouri label like so many well-known generals—among them Pershing and Bradley. He was born on the banks of the muddy Missouri river at Boonville and his wife lives at Hungry Hill in Lexington, Mo., upstream on the same river.

In Germany (AP)—One of the star patrol scouts of the western front is a full-blooded Navajo Indian who has killed 40 Japanese and at least six Germans—and thinks his Boy Scout training helped to make him a medal-winning soldier. Twice-wounded Pfc. Clifford (The Chief) Eistitty still likes to lead combat patrols and has made some hundred volunteer expeditions into enemy territory to gather information.

The 30-year-old Mexican Springs, N. M., Indian doesn't look particularly menacing. He is small—5 feet 5 tall and weighing 147 pounds—but he has the wiry endurance built up by years of range riding and bronco busting on ranches in New Mexico.

He has proved himself a hero in two theaters of war—the Pacific and European—but he would rather go on patrols than talk about them. He speaks slowly, looking steadily at you through deep brown eyes and

"Rapid Treatment" Of Venereal Disease

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Pennsylvania soon may set up more "rapid treatment" centers in its campaign against venereal diseases. "With penicillin becoming available in large quantities, we expect to expand rapid treatment facilities," said Dr. Edgar S. Everhart, chief of the state health department's venereal disease campaign.

One "rapid treatment" center already is in operation in Philadelphia. The war production board has increased the supply of penicillin available for civilian use and authorized its sale through normal trade channels.

twisting his neat small hands nervously. He is calm and unfrustrated but he isn't used to talking.

"I got my Japs on Attu in 20 days there," he said. "It was mostly night ambush work. We would wear white snow suits, pick a place in the snow and lay there until the Japs tried to come off. I then we would pick them off. I used an old model Springfield rifle then. Now I use an M1."

Jaw Smashed

"The Chief" received his first Purple Heart on Attu where a bursting mortar shell smashed his jaw. He spent five months in a hospital at Dutch Harbor and two more months in a Texas hospital. Then he was sent to the 99th Division and now he is the prize scout of Company G.

"I could see very well at night when I was on Attu," he said. "But I got a piece of shrapnel just above my left eye and it cut down my vision on that side. I don't mind night patrols but I would rather go out at daylight."

"The Chief" goes out with eleven other men on combat patrols and with three men on listening post patrols. He always goes first—and that's the way the men with him prefer it. They rely on him heavily. He carries only a rifle, no knife and no food because most of the patrols last about three hours.

Most Patrols Dull

"Most of them are dull—you don't see anything and nothing happens," he said.

But when it does happen it happens fast. Like the time he was across all but 30 yards of open field when a machinegun opened up on the exposed patrol. "The Chief" hit the ground and then silenced the enemy gun with six shots.

Another time he was hit by shrapnel in the back and legs and guided his patrol back over a 300-yard stretch of knee-deep snow swept by small arms fire. The Navajo dragged one wounded man and helped support another despite his own injuries.

"I never got my Purple Heart," said "The Chief."

"Yeah, that was because you forgot to go to the aid station," said one of his buddies, who added that the Indian was so steady under fire that he made a "cucumber seem about as cool as a Mexican jumping bean."

His company commander, Capt. John W. Haymaker, of Manhattan, Kans., son of a Kansas State Agricultural college botany professor, said that "The Chief" has an "amazing sense of direction."

"He never gets lost and he is

CAMPAIGNS ON IN THIS STATE

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Pennsylvania's 1945 political campaign got off to an early start Saturday—first day for candidates to circulate petitions for the June 19 primary election.

The General Assembly, with Governor Martin's approval, advanced the primary date from September 11, to give service men and women time to receive and return ballots at the November election.

Thousands of county, city, borough and townships offices are at alert and keen on patrol—as all Indians are," Haymaker said.

Foes Differ Little

"The Chief" thinks that there is little difference in the fighting ability of the Japanese and Germans although he says the latter have better weapons.

"When you get close to the Japanese they kill themselves. When you get close to the Germans they give up. The Germans are harder to outwit because I think they can see better at night than the Japanese."

Eistitty thinks his range life and the woodlore he learned from his half-Indian scoutmaster back home fitted him for stalking Japs and he is proud that some 11,000 Navajo tribesmen are in uniform.

"The Chief" hasn't scalped anyone yet but his friends say he has come pretty close several times.

"In my spare time I learned bar-baring," he said, his solemn face breaking into a grin. "I cut their hair."

Flood Control Dams A 'Good Investment'

Pittsburgh, March 12 (AP)—Flood control dams probably saved Pittsburgh $4,000,000 to $4,500,000 damage in the 33.4 foot river crest last week. U. S. Army engineers reported, in the whole Pittsburgh district, they said, the saving would run about $7,500,000.

The engineers said dams on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers cut the flood crest to one to 1.5 feet in Pittsburgh and from 1.75 to 2.25 feet at Wheeling.

and township offices are at alert with principal state-wide interest centered on election of Pittsburgh's mayor. The post now is held by Cornelius D. Scully, Democrat, serving his second term.

Two judges of the state Superior court will be elected this fall—the only state-wide offices to be filled. Judge W. Heber Dittich, of Pittsburgh, appointed to the court to fill a vacancy, is expected to be a Republican candidate for a full term. The other vacancy to be filled was caused by the death of President Judge William H. Keller. Governor Martin has yet to appoint a successor to serve until after the election.

The election gives Democrats an opportunity to win control of the seven-member Superior court for the first time since it was established in 1895. There are now two Democratic members, Judges Chester H. Rhodes and F. Clair Ross.

In Germany (AP)—One of the star patrol scouts of the western front is a full-blooded Navajo Indian who has killed 40 Japanese and at least six Germans—and thinks his Boy Scout training helped to make him a medal-winning soldier. Twice-wounded Pfc. Clifford (The Chief) Elstitt still likes to lead combat patrols and has made some hundred volunteer expeditions into enemy territory to gather information.

The 20-year-old Mexican Springs N. M., Indian doesn't look particularly menacing. He is small—5 feet 5 tall and weighing 147 pounds—but he has the wiry endurance built up by years of range riding and bronco busting on ranches in New Mexico.

He has proved himself a hero in two theaters of war—the Pacific and European—but he would rather go on patrols than talk about them. He speaks slowly, looking steadily at you through deep brown eyes and

"Rapid Treatment" Of Venereal Disease

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Pennsylvania soon may set up more "rapid treatment" centers in its campaign against venereal diseases. "With penicillin becoming available in large quantities, we expect to expand rapid treatment facilities," said Dr. Edgar S. Everhart, chief of the state health department's venereal disease campaign. One "rapid treatment" center already is in operation in Philadelphia. The war production board has increased the supply of penicillin available for civilian use and authorized its sale through normal trade channels.

twisting his neat small hands nervously. He is calm and unruffled but he isn't used to talking.

"I got my Japs on Attu in 20 days there," he said. "It was mostly night ambush work. We would wear white snow suits, pick a place in the snow and lay there until the Japs tried to come up. Then we would pick them off. I used an old model Springfield rifle then. Now I use an M1."

Jaw Smashed

"The Chief" received his first Purple Heart on Attu where a bursting mortar shell smashed his jaw. He spent five months in a hospital at Dutch Harbor and two more months in a Texas hospital. Then he was sent to the 99th Division and now he is the prize scout of Company G.

"I could see very well at night when I was on Attu," he said. "But I got a piece of shrapnel just above my left eye and it cut down my vision on that side. I don't mind night patrols but I would rather go out at daylight."

"The Chief" goes out with eleven other men on combat patrols and with three men on listening post patrols. He always goes first—and that's the way the men with him prefer it. They rely on him heavily. He carries only a rifle, no knife and no food because most of the patrols last only about three hours.

Most Patrols Dull

"Most of them are dull—you don't see anything and nothing happens," he said.

But when it does happen it happens fast. Like the time he was across all but 30 yards of open field when a machinegun opened up on the exposed patrol. "The Chief" hit the ground and then silenced the enemy gun with six shots.

Another time he was hit by shrapnel in the back and legs and guided his patrol back over a 300-yard stretch of knee-deep snow swept by small arms fire. The Navajo dragged one wounded man and helped support another despite his own injuries.

"I never got my Purple Heart," said "The Chief."

"Yeah, that was because you forgot to go to the aid station," said one of his buddies, who added that the Indian was so steady under fire that he made a "cucumber seem about as cool as a Mexican jumping bean."

His company commander, Capt. John W. Haymaker, of Manhattan, Kans., son of a Kansas State Agricultural college botany professor, said that "The Chief" has an "amazing sense of direction."

"He never gets lost and he is

CAMPAIGNS ON IN THIS STATE

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Pennsylvania's 1945 political campaign got off to an early start Saturday—first day for candidates to circulate petitions for the June 19 primary election.

The General Assembly, with Governor Martin's approval, advanced the primary date from September 11, to give service men and women time to receive and return ballots at the November election.

Thousands of county, city, borough alert and keen on patrol—as all Indians are," Haymaker said.

Foes Differ Little

"The Chief" thinks that there is little difference in the fighting ability of the Japanese and Germans although he says the latter have better weapons.

"When you get close to the Japanese they kill themselves. When you get close to the Germans they give up. The Germans are harder to outwit because I think they can see better at night than the Japanese."

Elstitt thinks his range life and the woodlore he learned from his half-Indian scoutmaster back home fitted him for stalking Japs and he is proud that some 11,000 Navajo tribesmen are in uniform.

"The Chief" hasn't scalped anyone yet but his friends say he has come pretty close several times.

"In my spare time I learned bar-barring," he said, his solemn face breaking into a grin. "I cut their hair."

Flood Control Dams A 'Good Investment'

Pittsburgh, March 12 (AP)—Flood control dams probably saved Pittsburgh $4,000,000 to $4,500,000 damage in the 334 foot river crest last week, U. S. Army engineers reported. In the whole Pittsburgh district, they said, the saving would run about $7,500,000.

The engineers said dams on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers cut the flood crest to one to 1.5 feet in Pittsburgh and from 1.75 to 2.25 feet at Wheeling.

and township offices are at stake with principal state-wide interest centered on election of Pittsburgh's mayor. The post now is held by Cornelius D. Scully, Democrat, serving his second term.

Two judges of the state Superior court will be elected this fall—the only state-wide offices to be filled. Judge W. Heber Dithrich, of Pittsburgh, appointed to the court to fill a vacancy, is expected to be a Republican candidate for a full term.

The other vacancy to be filled was caused by the death of President Judge William H. Keller. Governor Martin has yet to appoint a successor to serve until after the election.

The election gives Democrats an opportunity to win control of the seven-member Superior court for the first time since it was established in 1895. There are now two Democratic members, Judges Chester H. Rhodes and P. Clair Ross.

SHOWING OFF
If the place is clean and shiny and a gloss is on the stair,
And she's covered up the places where the rug's begun to wear;
If the curtains at the windows have been washed and stretched anew,
Then I know she's planned a party for a very special few.If the toys are in the closet and my books are put away,
If her prettiest fancy towels are once more upon display;
If her banquet cloth, embroidered, is brought out for them to view,
Then I know she's planned a dinner for a very special few.I can tell it as I enter from the turmoil of the street.
If a cry comes down the stairway: "Please, be sure to wipe your feet!"
If I'm told to hang my things up, which I very seldom do,
Then I'm sure she's planned a party for a most exclusive few.

Today's Talk

BENEFACTOR TO BOOK VAGRANTS

Books wander around just like humans do. And some of them wander so fast, changing their stalls so often, that they become regular confirmed Book Vagrants. Once in a while the genuine lover of these cast-offs takes pity on them and expends a dime or a quarter to give them temporary relief from the gaze of the uninterested, dusting their clothes and offering a smile to their clean, inward warmth of appreciation.

In a recent publication I came across an article which told of service to these vagrants of the second hand book stalls. It was written by a friend of mine, and a great lover of books, as well as noted publisher of them. He tells in this article how he has hunted out many a precious volume and restored it to eminent respectability in his "Ten Cent Book Shelf." This benefactor to Book Vagrants is none other than Mitchell Kennerley, Book Priest extraordinary of two continents!

Many a volume has this same M. K. deposited with a smile upon my welcome desk. It is amazing how many precious wanderers in the book world lie neglected on dusty shelves, awaiting the eye and hand, as well as heart, of just such benefactors to beautiful literature as M. K.

Needless to say, dozens of these small, compact, and beautifully printed books have given me many a steer for one of these daily talks, thus extending their worth and influence beyond all calculation. A good book never dies! Not even after the last volume of its publication has "gone the way of all flesh," for still does it live in many a mind and heart.

I often visit these second-hand book marts. There is silence there. All about you, you view searching eyes and quiet minds. To make such periodic visits is to get back in the world again, after many a push to the side-lines. I have even thought that every town should endow at least one good second-hand book shop. If not with money, then with patronage and a kind of heroic good will!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "TLC."

BATTLE FOR IWO 'ALL BUT OVER,' SCRIBE REPORTS

By ELMONT WAITE

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 12 (AP)—The battle for Iwo Jima appeared all but over on this 22nd day of the bloodiest invasion of the Pacific war as relentless U. S. Marines drove the Japanese to last-stand positions.

Most of the remaining Nipponese were squeezed into a 1,000-yard triangle on Kitano Point, northern tip of the island.

There they fought with desperate fury.

They were battered by Marine heavy artillery and the guns of U. S. naval vessels.

Rockey's Men Move Up

Only one other pocket of resistance remained at 6 p. m. yesterday. This was a force of Japanese cut off and bypassed earlier yesterday by Marines of the Third and Fourth Divisions as they captured most of Iwo's northeast coast.

Leathernecks of Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rocky's Fifth Division, moving up the west coast, had sealed off the Kitano Point position.

The many caves which spot the cliffs could conceal several thousand if that many survived the long battle.

Coast Is Freed

After 22 days of the most bitter fighting in Marine history, the Japanese have been driven into a rugged area which roughly is about one mile deep and takes in two miles of coastline. A small pocket also remains to be cleaned up on the northeast sector but for all practical purposes the entire east coast is now held by Americans.

Two patrols of the Fourth Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Bates, penetrated to the northeast beach and found mines and booby traps but no enemy troops.

With the support of heavy artillery and naval gunfire, Marines Sunday pushed slowly to the vicinity of the high butte where possibly the largest remaining force of Japanese is holed up for the final stand.

The Fellowship Of Prayer

Anxious? For What? "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat."—Matthew 6:25. Read Psalms 23.

"Take no thought for your life." No, Jesus did not say that nor has he forbade us to be anxious about our own spiritual states. Take care, he did say, not to identify life with food and raiment. Even so, it all sounds more like the poetry of an idealist than the prose of life. After all someone must take thought for food and raiment. But the thought for food and raiment is not to blacken everything else out. That care magnified by greed and embittered by competition defeats itself and in the end no one has food or clothing enough. That is not poetry. It is the tragic prose of history.

And all this while there is enough in God's world. Enough for the sparrow, enough for a Chinese baby. Jesus was not concerned about economic processes. He left them to us. He was concerned with the human attitudes and relationships within whose framework economic processes work. He knew, and so do we, that if we make our first concern for the true wealth of life and not merely for things, there might be bread enough and to spare and toil would no longer be salt with human tears.

Prayer: O Thou who openest Thine hand and fillest Thy creatures with good, forgive us our foolish wasteful ways with the stored wealth of this. Thy world So instruct us in the true wealth of life that seeking the welfare of all Thy children, we may no longer be anxious for our daily needs having found the secret of the abounding life Through Jesus Christ. Amen

GOP In Pittsburgh - After City Hall

Pittsburgh, March 12 (AP)—After 11 lean years, Republicans are aiming themselves for a battle to regain control of Pittsburgh city hall—a fight which they lost by only 3,600 votes in a poll of 220,000 at the last election.

On the registration books, the Republicans wouldn't appear to have a chance. They have only 121,619 votes registered, as compared with 187,730 Democrats.

The choice of a candidate for the Democrats, however, is none too clear. Mayor Cornelius D. Scully has been in poor health and may or may not choose to run again.

Should Scully withdraw from the field, City Controller Edward R. Fray has been suggested as a likely organization candidate, as has city council president Thomas E. Kighan. Register of Wills John M. Huston has been mentioned as a possible independent candidate.

MORE THAN 550 COUNTY PUPILS AT MUSIC FETE

More than 550 school children from the county's schools participated in the annual county public school music festival held at the East Berlin high school Friday night.

An audience of 800 persons witnessed the program which consisted of two numbers each by the junior high school chorus, the boys' glee club and girls' glee club and five numbers by the mixed chorus. The two songs by the junior high school chorus were conducted by Mrs. Robert Deardorff and Miss Annabelle Manbeck. The combined high school bands played seven pieces under the direction of various music instructors in the schools. The conductors were Charles L. Yost, Edwin S. Longenecker, Paul H. Harner, Harry C. Stenger and Dale H. Roth.

The schools represented in the bands included Littlestown, Arendtsville, New Oxford, Gettysburg, Biglerville, East Berlin, Fairfield and York Springs. SHOWING OFF

If the place is clean and shiny and a gloss is on the stair,
And she's covered up the places where the rug's begun to wear;
If the curtains at the windows have been washed and stretched anew,
Then I know she's planned a party for a very special few.

If the toys are in the closet and my books are put away,
If her prettiest fancy towels are once more upon display;
If her banquet cloth, embroidered, is brought out for them to view,
Then I know she's planned a dinner for a very special few.

I can tell it as I enter from the turmoil of the street.
If a cry comes down the stairway: "Please, be sure to wipe your feet!"
If I'm told to hang my things up, which I very seldom do,
Then I'm sure she's planned a party for a most exclusive few.

Today's Talk

BENEFACITOR TO BOOK VAGRANTS

Books wander around just like humans do. And some of them wander so fast, changing their stalls so often, that they become regular confirmed Book Vagrants. Once in a while the genuine lover of these cast-offs takes pity on them and expends a dime or a quarter to give them temporary relief from the gaze of the uninterested, dusting their clothes and offering a smile to their clean, inward warmth of appreciation.

In a recent publication I came across an article which told of service to these vagrants of the second hand book stalls. It was written by a friend of mine, and a great lover of books, as well as noted publisher of them. He tells in this article how he has hunted out many a precious volume and restored it to eminent respectability in his "Ten Cent Book Shelf." This benefactor to Book Vagrants is none other than Mitchell Kennerley, Book Priest extraordinary of two continents!

Many a volume has this same M. K. deposited with a smile upon my welcome desk. It is amazing how many precious wanderers in the book world lie neglected on dusty shelves, awaiting the eye and hand, as well as heart, of just such benefactors to beautiful literature as M. K.

Needless to say, dozens of these small, compact, and beautifully printed books have given me many a steer for one of these daily talks, thus extending their worth and influence beyond all calculation. A good book never dies! Not even after the last volume of its publication has "gone the way of all flesh," for still does it live in many a mind and heart.

I often visit these second-hand book marts. There is silence there. All about you, you view searching eyes and quiet minds. To make such periodic visits is to get back in the world again, after many a push to the side-lines. I have even thought that every town should endow at least one good second-hand book shop. If not with money, then with patronage and a kind of heroic good will!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "TLC."

Out Of The Past

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Two New States: The bill for the admission of the Territories of Florida and Iowa into the Union as States, has passed Congress—so that the number of the family of States is now enlarged to twenty-eight.

Great Speed: The Inaugural Address of the President was carried from Washington to Baltimore (40 miles) in an hour and two minutes and from Washington to Cumberland (202 miles) in six hours and fifteen minutes.

Canals Open: The water was let into the Pennsylvania Canals on Monday, and the packet and freight boats have commenced running. The fare from Philadelphia to Baltimore is $9.

C. J. French, Attorney and Counselor at Law, will practice in the several courts of Adams county, and transact business given to his care punctually and carefully.—Office on Chambersburg street, two doors east of Thompson's Hotel.

It is said that Mr. Calhoun was offered the mission to England, but declined it; that Silas Wright was offered the Treasury Department, and B. F. Butler the War Department, but all declined.

Died: On Tuesday, David Agnew, son of Mr. David McCreary, of this borough, aged 2 years and 5 months.

Entertainments: On Friday and Saturday evening Eugene Blitz gave two pleasant entertainments in Agricultural Hall, exhibiting considerable skill in sundry "slight-of-hand" performances, representations of comic characters, &c. "Punch and Judy" was especially enjoyed by the young folks.

On Tuesday evening Mr. Hewitt delivered his lecture entitled "Muzzle that Dog." It was an argument for Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic. . . . We are requested by members of Gen. Reynolds Lodge of Good Templars, under whose auspices Mr. H. lectured, to express to the citizens who were present on the occasion the thanks of the Lodge for their encouragement and liberal patronage.

The rapid decline of gold has induced a number of business houses in the cities to resume specie payments on a small scale. Among others, Wanamaker & Brown, of Philadelphia, dealers in Ready-Made clothing, have commenced to pay out specie, in change, instead of currency.

For Rent: Intending to remove, on the 1st of April, to North-west corner of Center square, I offer for Rent the Store Room 1 at present occupied on York street opposite Chrismer's Bakery.

Died: Sheads.—On the 7th of February, in this place, Mrs. Rosannah Sheads, widow of John Sheads, deceased, aged 66 years.

BATTLE FOR IWO
'ALL BUT OVER,'
SCRIBE REPORTS

By ELMONT WAITE

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 12 (AP)—The battle for Iwo Jima appeared all but over on this 22nd day of the bloodiest invasion of the Pacific war as relentless U. S. Marines drove the Japanese to last-stand positions.

Most of the remaining Japanese were squeezed into a 1,000-yard triangle on Kitano Point, northern tip of the island.

There they fought with desperate fury.

They were battered by Marine heavy artillery and the guns of U. S. naval vessels.

Rockey's Men Move Up

Only one other pocket of resistance remained at 6 p. m. yesterday. This was a force of Japanese cut off and bypassed earlier yesterday by Marines of the Third and Fourth Divisions as they captured most of Iwo's northeast coast.

Leathernecks of Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rocky's Fifth Division, moving up the west coast, had sealed off the Kitano Point position.

The many caves which spot the cliffs could conceal several thousand if that many survived the long battle.

Coast Is Freed

After 22 days of the most bitter fighting in Marine history, the Japanese have been driven into a rugged area which roughly is about one mile deep and takes in two miles of coastline. A small pocket also remains to be cleaned up on the northeast sector but for all practical purposes the entire east coast is now held by Americans.

Two patrols of the Fourth Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Clinton B. Cates, penetrated to the northeast beach and found mines and booby traps but no enemy troops.

With the support of heavy artillery and naval gunfire, Marines Sunday pushed slowly to the vicinity of the high butte where possibly the largest remaining force of Japanese is holed up for the final stand.

The Fellowship
Of Prayer

Anxious? For What? "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat—" Matthew 6:25. Read Psalms 23.

"Take no thought for your life." No, Jesus did not say that nor has he forbade us to be anxious about our own spiritual states. Take care, he did say, not to identify life with food and raiment. Even so, it all sounds more like the poetry of an idealist than the prose of life. After all someone must take thought for food and raiment. But the thought for food and raiment is not to black everything else out. That care magnified by greed and embittered by competition defeats itself and in the end no one has food or clothing enough. That is not poetry. It is the tragic prose of history.

And all this while there is enough in God's world. Enough for the sparrow, enough for a Chinese baby. Jesus was not concerned about economic processes. He left them to us. He was concerned with the human attitudes and relationships within whose framework economic processes work. He knew, and so do we, that if we make our first concern for the true wealth of life and not merely for things, there might be bread enough and to spare and toil would no longer be salt with human tears.

Prayer: O Thou who openest Thine hand and fillest Thy creatures with good, forgive us our foolish wasteful ways with the stored wealth of this, Thy world. So instruct us in the true wealth of life that seeking the welfare of all Thy children, we may no longer be anxious for our daily needs having found the secret of the abounding life Through Jesus Christ. Amen.

GOP In Pittsburgh
After City Hall

Pittsburgh, March 12 (AP)—After 11 lean years, Republicans are arming themselves for a battle to regain control of Pittsburgh city hall—a fight which they lost by only 3,600 votes in a poll of 220,000 at the last election.

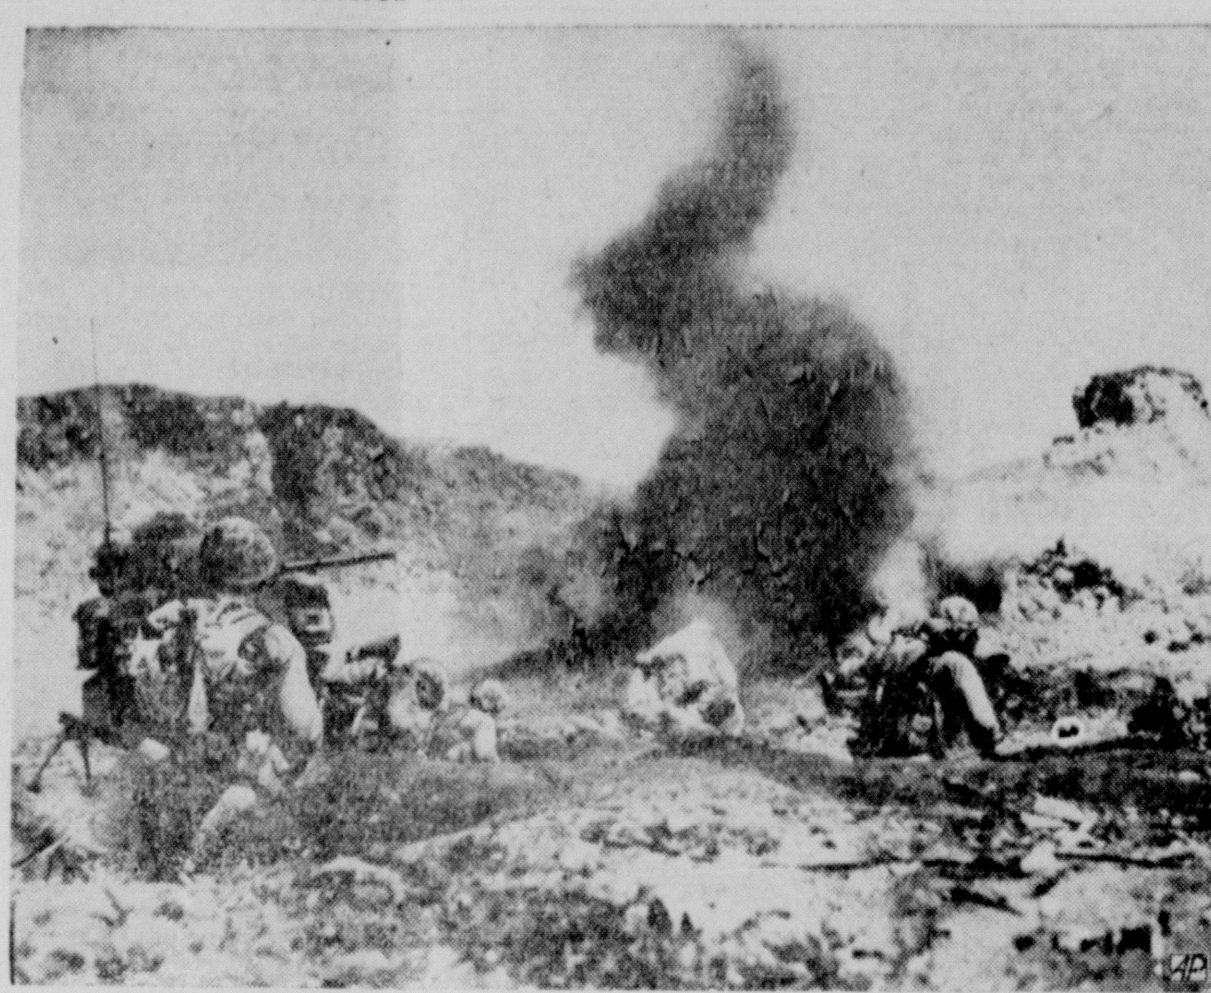

On the registration books, the Republicans wouldn't appear to have a chance. They have only 121,619 votes registered, as compared with 187,730 Democrats.

The choice of a candidate for the Democrats, however, is none too clear. Mayor Cornelius D. Scully has been in poor health and may or may not choose to run again.

Should Scully withdraw from the field, City Controller Edward R. Fray has been suggested as a likely organization candidate, as has city council president Thomas E. Kilgallen. Register of Wills John M. Huston has been mentioned as a possible independent candidate.

"Guess this kind of puts it up to you, Mrs. Jones-to-be!"

It's up to you, honey.

I'll do all I can—but they don't pay privates in the Army very much.

So—it's up to you. It's your turn now, to wear the pants, hold down a job, and take care of the Jones' future finances.

You're smart enough to do it, too. To realize that if you'll take every cent that you don't need to live on and tuck it away in those same War Bonds I've been buying—we'll do all right.

I'll be coming back someday. I know that. I don't think anything could happen to a fellow who's going to marry you. And when I do come back...

With what I've saved in War Bonds, and what you're going to save in War Bonds, and with the extra money those Bonds are going to bring—we'll...

We'll have a stake. A stake that'll help us to make up for all the time I've been away.

And we'll have something else, too—something that we wouldn't want to be without. Between my fighting and your buying, we'll have the knowledge that we both toed the line and did our share.

So buy those Bonds, honey. And hang onto them. Till the day when I get back—it's up to you!

Keep faith with our fighters—buy War Bonds for keeps!

You're smart enough to do it, too. To realize that if you'll take every cent that you don't need to live on and tuck it away in those same War Bonds I've been buying—we'll do all right.

I'll be coming back someday. I know that. I don't think anything could happen to a fellow who's going to marry you. And when I do come back...

With what I've saved in War Bonds, and what you're going to save in War Bonds, and with the extra money those Bonds are going to bring—well...

We'll have a stake. A stake that'll help us to make up for all the time I've been away.

And we'll have something else, too—something that we wouldn't want to be without. Between my fighting and your buying, we'll have the knowledge that we both toed the line and did our share.

So buy those Bonds, honey. And hang onto them. Till the day when I get back—it's up to you!

Keep faith with our fighters—buy War Bonds for keeps!

Special Plot Simplifies Task Of Growing Flowers To Cut

Wherever garden space permits, there should be a special section set aside for growing cut flowers, says Alfred Putz, in the New York Herald Tribune. One part of this may be devoted to perennials and another to annuals. There are several advantages to such a layout. First of all the beauty of the show garden will not be depleted every time cut flowers are needed for indoor decoration. Secondly, the varieties may be chosen primarily for their cutting qualities. The straight row arrangement of the cutting garden also saves much labor and the plants are likely to bloom more profusely because of the extra space made available for them, where consideration of mass effect does not enter into the problem.

SOW CARROTS OFTEN AND EAT THEM YOUNG

Location of the plot where watering can be taken care of, if needed, is an important safeguard where heat and drought are common summer occurrences. Staking plants subject to wind and rainstorm damage is as important in the cutting garden, as anywhere else.

Asters, marigolds, scabiosa and zinnias are a few of the favorite cut flowers and, where growing conditions are conducive to success, snapdragons should be added. In cooler regions sweetpeas occupy a foremost position. Calendula, annual chrysanthemum, celosia, calliopsis, cosmos, larkspur, nasturtium, solpiglossa, and the small-flowered varieties of helianthus will give flowers galore.

Centauria cyanus (bachelor's button), Centauria imperialis (sweet sultan) and Centauria americana (basket flower) are important because they bloom freely if kept cut.

Where summers are hot, the annual gaillardia is indispensable. It will bloom and bloom when most annuals are showing a decided resentment against the heat.

Arcotis, clarkia, dianthus (pinks), godetia, gypsophila (baby's breath), candytuft, lupine, nemesis, annual poppies, phlox, verbena, and even scarlet sage are all good for cutting, filling in the seasons from early summer until frost.

Never use lye, potash or drain solvents to thaw frozen waste pipes.

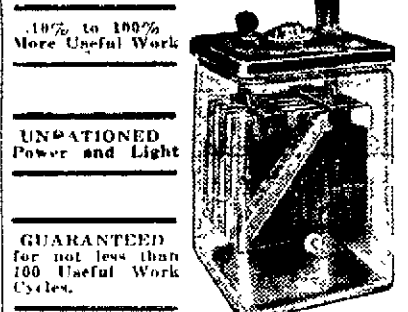

The tear gland (lachrymal) is about the size of an almond.

If you have had trouble in getting an even stand of carrots when sown thinly, do not sow more thickly to overcome this. Instead, after sowing the seed cover it with peat moss, or finely sifted soil mixed with one half inch sand through which the carrot seedlings will have no difficulty growing.

Two Key Dates For Victory Gardeners

Two key dates which govern Victory garden operations in the spring are: the date when all deep frost is out of the ground and the soil becomes dry enough to spade, and the date after which tender plants are reasonably safe from frost damage.

Hardy plants, which are those that stand light frosts without injury, can be sown as soon as the ground can be worked; and this date is dependent more often upon rainfall than upon temperature. Tender plants cannot be sown or set out until danger of frost is over; and if they are started indoors, or in a hot-bed or cold-frame, the time to start them is from six to eight weeks before the frost-proof date.

Weather records in this area show that April 25 is the date after which damaging frosts are not to be expected, although no weather man will guarantee it as a "frostproof date." It is simply the average date of the last killing frost with the safest planting date probably a few days or a week later.

BATTIS QUILTS
Philadelphia, March 12 (AP) — Justice D. Battis, secretary of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, has submitted his resignation to Chairman Leon Rains and Governor Edward Martin. Battis said "the

Grow Beets Early And Late
There are five important reasons why every vegetable gardener should include beets in his plans from early spring until late autumn: (1) They are not injured by light frosts, hence can be started as soon as soil permits working this month; (2) They are unexcelled for immediate table use; (3) They may be canned for all-winter consumption or stored in a cool cellar or buried in outdoor pits; (4) Canned or otherwise stored they furnish a valuable source of healthful vitamins and minerals for the winter diet; (5) The crisp green tops served as cooked greens are even richer in food values than the tasty roots.

Garden beets thrive on a wide range of soils, providing the loam is deeply mellow and liberally balanced with organic matter. Like other root crops, they do not succeed on hard and shallow soils. Well rotted and pulverized manure is often beneficial, turned under fairly deep at least a week or two before planting time. A complete commercial fertilizer is profitable in most cases, although beets do not require much nitrogen in this form. A 4-12-4 strength is somewhere near the best mixture to use, worked into the top soil uniformly before sowing seed. Fertilization rates may range from 500 to 900 pounds per acre.

As already suggested, the first planting should be made within the next two weeks or as soon as the soil can be prepared. No protection will be needed from light frosts, although covering may be wise if hard frosts occur after the tiny plants appear.

Leaf Spot Troublesome
Prepare a fine seed bed and sow seed at the rate of 3 to 10 per foot of row, thinning plants to stand about 4 inches apart. Removals for thinning may be transplanted to missing places or into additional rows. From 12 to 18 inches between rows is sufficient for hand tillage. Cover seed shallow but firmly, using sand or sandy soil to prevent surface crusts from interfering with the fragile plants after seed germination.

Leaf-spot is the most troublesome disease in most gardens, easily recognized by the characteristic roundish to irregular spots with whitish centers and purplish borders. Burn all beet refuse before winter and rotate the crop to clean soils each year. When the first evidence of leaf-spot is discovered, spray with 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture every week to 10 days.

If flea-beetles attack the plants add 2½ to 3 level tablespoons of arsenate of lead to each gallon of Bordeaux mixture until the pests disappear. If best tops are to be used as greens, combat flea-beetles with a derris dust.

Make successive plantings every two or three weeks until late summer to have tender beets coming to edible size from late spring until winter. Plan a liberal late crop for canning and storage. And above all give the family the health-promoting benefits of beet greens throughout the season, one of the richest sources of the important vitamin A. The late crop, for greens or roots, may be grown as a follow crop after early potatoes, cabbage and similar vegetables.

The proportion of flowers to the quantity of foliage is another factor entering into the selection for display purposes. These are just a few of the reasons—though perhaps the most important ones—for establishing a separate cutting garden.

The number of annuals valued for cutting is considerably larger than most gardeners realize. Some are quite tall while others range down to plants usually thought of only as dwarf bedding plants.

Grow Beets Early And Late

There are five important reasons why every vegetable gardener should include beets in his plans from early spring until late autumn—(1) They are not injured by light frosts, hence can be started as soon as soil permits working this month; (2) They are unexcelled for immediate table use; (3) They may be canned for all-winter consumption or stored in a cool cellar or buried in outdoor pits; (4) Canned or otherwise stored they furnish a valuable source of healthful vitamins and minerals for the winter diet; (5) The crisp green tops served as cooked greens are even richer in food values than the tasty roots.

Garden beets thrive on a wide range of soils, providing the loam is deeply mellow and liberally balanced with organic matter. Like other root crops, they do not succeed on hard and shallow soils. Well rotted and pulverized manure is often beneficial, turned under fairly deep at least a week or two before planting time. A complete commercial fertilizer is profitable in most cases, although beets do not require much nitrogen in this form. A 4-12-4 strength is somewhere near the best mixture to use, worked into the top soil uniformly before sowing seed. Fertilization rates may range from 500 to 900 pounds per acre.

As already suggested, the first planting should be made within the next two weeks or as soon as the soil can be prepared. No protection will be needed from light frosts, although covering may be wise if hard freezes occur after the tiny plants appear.

Garden Activities For Mid - March

Early lawn care is an important feature in the March garden program. Early reseeding of thin and bare spots is essential, as most grass species used in the better grass mixtures are cool-weather plants and will benefit from an early start.

The removal of winter coverings from shrubs, beds and borders should be gradual and should be governed by the prevailing weather.

Hardwood ashes are an excellent fertilizer for grapes, iris, delphiniums and roses. Keep them dry and apply as soon as cultivation starts.

Seeds of eggplants, tomatoes, peppers, cauliflower, early cabbage and broccoli may be started this month.

Inspect trees, shrubs and evergreens planted last fall to make sure the soil is firm around the roots and all stakes are secure.

Repair and paint garden arbors and fences before the vines start new growth.

St. Patrick's Day is the traditional time in this section for outdoor sowing of sweetpeas. If the soil is in proper condition.

Annuals which may be started indoors in mid-March include: Phlox drummondii, cosmos, asters, snapdragons, zinnias, verbenas, ageratums, petunias, salvias, scabiosas, nicotianas, annual gaillardias, stocks and the annual moonflowers, chrysanthemums and morning glories.

Leaf Spot Troublesome

Prepare a fine seed bed and sow seed at the rate of 8 to 10 per foot of row, thinning plants to stand about 4 inches apart. Removals for thinning may be transplanted to missing places or into additional rows. From 12 to 18 inches between rows is sufficient for hand tillage. Cover seed shallow but firmly, using sand or sandy soil to prevent surface crusts from interfering with the fragile plants after seed germinates.

Leaf-spot is the most troublesome disease in most gardens, easily recognized by the characteristic roundish to irregular spots with whitish centers and purplish borders. Burn all beet refuse before winter and rotate the crop to clean soils each year. When the first evidence of leaf-spot are discovered, spray with 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture every week to 10 days.

If flea-beetles attack the plants, add 2 1/2 to 3 level tablespoonsful of arsenate of lead to each gallon of Bordeaux mixture until the pests disappear. If best tops are to be used as greens, combat flea-beetles with a derris dust.

Make successive plantings every two or three weeks until late summer to have tender beets coming to edible size from late spring until winter. Plan a liberal late crop for canning and storage. And above all give the family the health-promoting benefits of beet greens throughout the season, one of the richest sources of the important vitamin A. The late crop, for greens or roots, may be grown as a follow crop after early potatoes, cabbage and similar vegetables.

Two Key Dates For Victory Gardeners

Two key dates which govern Victory garden operations in the spring are: the date when all deep frost is out of the ground and the soil becomes dry enough to spade, and the date after which tender plants are reasonably safe from frost damage.

Hardy plants, which are those that stand light frosts without injury, can be sown as soon as the ground can be worked; and this date is dependent more often upon rainfall than upon temperature. Tender plants cannot be sown or set out until danger of frost is over; and if they are started indoors, or in a hot-bed or cold-frame, the time to start them is from six to eight weeks before the frost-proof date.

Weather records in this area show that April 25 is the date after which damaging frosts are not to be expected, although no weather man will guarantee it as a "frostproof date." It is simply the average date of the last killing frost with the safest planting date probably a few days or a week later.

ANTI-POLLUTION BILL WILL PASS; STUDY AIRPORTS

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—The administration Anti-Pollution Bill reaches a vote in the House tonight with a passage virtually assured but Democratic leaders planned a strategy move designed to show their support is needed to produce the necessary 105 votes.

Both Rep. Charles H. Brunner, Jr. (R., Montgomery), sponsor of the measure prohibiting dumping of mine silt into streams, and Rep. H. G. Andrews, the Democratic floor leader, predicted its passage but opposition was expected from individual representatives.

Before the vote is taken, Democratic sources disclosed, a motion may be made to call the roll of representatives by party affiliation rather than in the usual alphabetical order.

Airport Program
Such a move, certain to be opposed by Republicans, would place the GOP representatives on record before the roll call of Democrats is started. Republicans control the House by a narrow margin of four votes necessary to pass a bill. The party division is 109 Republicans and 99 Democrats.

The climax of the two-months fight over Governor Martin's pure stream program dominated Assembly activities but two conferences on major objectives were listed before opening of the 11th week of the 1945 session.

Republican and Democratic leaders were called to meet with Governor Martin to discuss a $34,000,000 airport development program recommended by the State Aeronautics Commission. Leaders agreed on general terms of the program last week and hoped to get down to details this week.

The other conference was that of representatives of labor and industry in an effort to reach agreement on labor legislation, including increased benefits for workmen's and unemployment compensation. Governor Martin recommended increases and said he would submit a program of rates if labor and industry were unable to get together.

Leaders Thankful For Boys' Prayers

Atlanta, March 12 (AP)—Back in 1942, as the Japs crept toward the doors of Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur wasn't too busy to sit down and write to a small group of boys in Atlanta to thank them for their prayers.

"With divine guidance," Gen. MacArthur wrote, "we cannot fail." So the 12 boys in James Worthington's Sunday school class at Capital View Methodist church began praying for the Allied leaders. And they wrote to them telling of their prayers.

Thus far the boys have a collection of 63 letters from generals and statesmen. A movement has been started to preserve the collection at Emory university here.

"Not one of those who received our letters failed to reply," said Worthington. "What impressed me most was the dates of the letters. Many, as borne out by news dispatches, were written in the midst of battle."

Need 2,000 Nurses From Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchinson, Pennsylvania defense director, said today the Army needs 16,000 additional nurses immediately, "and this means that more than 2,000 will have to come from this state."

Hutchinson said 5,000 Pennsylvania nurses now are in service. "The state has x x x 50,000 registered nurses and, besides, more than 3,000 graduates come into the field yearly," the director said. "That is considered enough nurses to meet both military and civilian needs."

"With higher casualty lists being given out, the Army must obtain nurses quickly even though a nurse draft may be in effect within a few months."

Questions Lewis Claim On 'Dispute'

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Representative Smith (D-Va.), co-sponsor of the Smith-Connally act, questioned today John L. Lewis's claim of a dispute last month between miners and blamorous operators under terms of the labor disputes statute.

"My own construction of the act would be that a dispute does not exist until there are two parties involved," Smith said. He added to a reporter that he could not see how a dispute could have been present when Lewis filed notice February 26 with the NLRB, necessitating a strike vote in 30 days.

Negotiations toward a new contract opened March 1. At that time Lewis made known his 18 demands, including a 10-cent-a-ton royalty to provide a "rainy day" fund for mine workers.

Second Marriage

YESTERDAY: Cynthia and Carey married and set out by car for Cynthia's home. As they approach the house, Cynthia, dirty and disheveled, first realizes what a shock she has in store for her children and Maud. She watches in horror as their faces grow rigid as she presents Carey.

Chapter 7
Cynthia wanted to laugh but she was crying.
"This is Carey. We're married—" He was beside her. He had her hand, warm and secure. "She's still your mother. Don't look like that, you kids."

He knew how to talk to them. They were pretty decent about it; it was only that she couldn't feel that she had been fair to them.

They behaved as well brought up youngsters would. One by one they shook hands with Carey and kissed their mother but the kisses were not like the first ones.

Aunt Maud was climatic. "You must be dreadfully tired. Dinner is a little early tonight and you'll be glad of that. But there's time to freshen up." She might have been talking to week-end guests. In the shadowy blue bedroom Cynthia really cried.

"They're furious," she sobbed, collapsing on the chaise longue. "I could feel it like a cold wind blowing through" me.

Carey was peeling off his shirt. He didn't even try to comfort her.

"What could be better than a cold wind? They'll be all right by tomorrow. You're tired, honey girl, and your conscience is working overtime. And now—where's the bathroom?"

She stopped crying at once. The hurt was gone but it was succeeded by something more subtle but not less keen.

She opened the bathroom door for him and there was Edris with her hands full of tooth-brushes and wash cloths. The child was white as paste and trembled all over. She dropped a box of dusting powder and a cloud rose and obscured all their faces before it settled.

"Edris!" Cynthia cried, startled. "What are you doing?"

"Moving my things." The whisper was indistinct. "Aunt Maud said—"

"What did she say?" Cynthia found relief for overcharged nerves in anger directed at Maud.

"What right has she—" And then she paused, realizing that Maud was probably right as usual. She began to scoop up the powder that had spilled in a heap. It kept her from meeting Edris's eyes. "It's a small bathroom," she said in a falsely careless voice. "Tomorrow we'll change rooms a bit. You may have this all to yourself, darling."

Carey, with a striped bathrobe over his arm, pushed in and turned on the shower as if he had always lived there. "Out you go, girls," he shouted over the roar. "Or else—"

It was absurd to keep remembering Edris's shocked retreating face. The beaches were always full of men in trunks with the sky for a

FOR FREE PRESS

Philadelphia, March 12 (AP) — Senator Myers (D. Pa.) told the Montgomery-Bucks-Delaware County Publishers association Saturday that assurance of a world-wide free press should be one of the first or- ders of business at the United Na- tions' forthcoming San Francisco conference.

KILLED IN CRASH

Philadelphia, March 12 (AP) — Walter King, Jr., 17, was killed yes- terday when his motorcycle crashed into a pole in suburban Manoa. Mrs. Katherine McKeon, 65, was struck and killed here by a car.

ANTI-POLLUTION BILL WILL PASS; STUDY AIRPORTS

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—The administration Anti-Pollution Bill reaches a vote in the House tonight with a passage virtually assured but Democratic leaders planned a strategy move designed to show their support is needed to produce the necessary 105 votes.

Both Rep. Charles H. Brunner, Jr. (R., Montgomery), sponsor of the measure prohibiting dumping of mine silt into streams, and Rep. H. G. Andrews, the Democratic floor leader, predicted its passage but opposition was expected from individual representatives.

Before the vote is taken, Demo- cratic sources disclosed, a motion may be made to call the roll of repre- sentatives by party affiliation rather than in the usual alphabetical or- der.

Airport Program

Such a move, certain to be op- posed by Republicans, would place the GOP representatives on record before the roll call of Democrats is started. Republicans control the House by a narrow margin of four votes necessary to pass a bill. The party division is 109 Republicans and 99 Democrats.

The climax of the two-months' fight over Governor Martin's pure stream program dominated Assem- bly activities but two conferences on major objectives were listed be- fore opening of the 11th week of the 1945 session.

Republican and Democratic lead- ers were called to meet with Gov- ernor Martin to discuss a $34,000,000 airport development program recom- mended by the State Aeronautics Commission. Leaders agreed on gen- eral terms of the program last week and hoped to get down to details this week.

The other conference was that of representatives of labor and indus- try in an effort to reach agreement on labor legislation, including in- creased benefits for workmen's and unemployment compensation. Gov- ernor Martin recommended in- creases and said he would submit a program of rates if labor and indus- try were unable to get together.

She stopped crying at once. The hurt was gone but it was succeeded by something more subtle but not less keen.

She opened the bathroom door for him and there was Edris with her hands full of tooth-brushes and wash cloths. The child was white as paste and trembled all over. She dropped a box of dusting powder and a cloud rose and obscured all their faces before it settled.

"Edris!" Cynthia cried, startled. "What are you doing?"

"Moving my things." The whis- per was indistinct. "Aunt Maud said—"

"What did she say?" Cynthia found relief for overcharged nerves in anger directed at Maud.

"What right has she—?" And then she paused, realizing that Maud was probably right as usual. She began to scoop up the powder that had spilled in a heap. It kept her from meeting Edris' eyes. "It is a small bathroom," she said in a falsely careless voice. "Tomorrow we'll change rooms a bit. You may have this all to yourself, darling."

Carrey, with a striped bathrobe over his arm, pushed in and turned on the shower as if he had always lived there. "Out you go, girls," he shouted over the roar. "Or else—"

It was absurd to keep remembering Edris' shocked retreating face. The beaches were always full of men in trunks with the sky for a

Atlanta, March 12 (AP)—Back in 1942, as the Japs crept toward the doors of Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur wasn't too busy to sit down and write to a small group of boys in Atlanta to thank them for their prayers.

With divine guidance," Gen. MacArthur wrote, "we cannot fail."

So the 12 boys in James Worth- ington's Sunday school class at Capital View Methodist church began praying for the Allied leaders. And they wrote to them telling of their prayers.

Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison, Pennsylv- ania defense director, said today the Army needs 16,000 additional nurses immediately, "and this means that more than 2,000 will have to come from this state."

Hutchison said 5,000 Pennsylvania nurses now are in service.

"The state has x x x 50,000 regis- tered nurses and, besides, more than 3,000 graduates come into the field yearly," the director said. "That is considered enough nurses to meet both military and civilian needs."

"With higher casualty lists being given out, the Army must obtain nurses quickly even though a nurse draft may be in effect within a few months."

Questions Lewis Claim On 'Dispute'

Washington, March 12 (AP)— Representative Smith (D-Va.), co- sponsor of the Smith-Connally act, questioned today John L. Lewis' claim of a dispute last month be- tween miners and bituminous op- erators under terms of the labor dis- putes statute.

"My own construction of the act would be that a dispute does not exist until there are two parties involved," Smith said. He added to a reporter that he could not see how a dispute could have been present when Lewis filed notice February 26 with the NLRB, neces- sitating a strike vote in 30 days.

Negotiations toward a new con- tract opened March 1. At that time Lewis made known his 18 demands, including a 10-cent-a-ton royalty to provide a "rainy day" fund for mine workers.

Second Marriage

By EVELYN MURRAY CAMPBELL

YESTERDAY: Cynthia and Carey marry and set out by car for Cyn- thia's home. As they approach the house, Cynthia, dirty and disheveled, first realizes what a shock she has in store for her children and Maud. She watches in horror as their faces grow rigid as she presents Carey.

Chapter 7

Cynthia wanted to laugh but she was crying.

"This is Carey. We're married—" He was beside her. He had her hand, warm and secure. "She's still your mother. Don't look like that, you kids."

He knew how to talk to them. They were pretty decent about it; they were only that she couldn't feel that she had been fair to them.

They behaved as well brought up youngsters would. One by one they shook hands with Carey and kissed their mother but the kisses were not like the first ones.

Aunt Maud was climatic. "You must be dreadfully tired. Dinner is a little early tonight and you'll be glad of that. But there's time to freshen up—" She might have been talking to week-end guests. In the shadowy blue bedroom Cynthia really cried.

"They're furious," she sobbed, col- lapsing on the chaise longue. "I could feel it like a cold wind blow- ing through me."

Carrey was peeling off his shirt. He didn't even try to comfort her.

"What could be better than a cold wind? They'll be all right by to- morrow. You're tired, honey girl, and your conscience is working overtime. And now—where's the bathroom?"

She stopped crying at once. The hurt was gone but it was succeeded by something more subtle but not less keen.

She opened the bathroom door for him and there was Edris with her hands full of tooth-brushes and wash cloths. The child was white as paste and trembled all over. She dropped a box of dusting powder and a cloud rose and obscured all their faces before it settled.

McSpaden, Nelson
Win 4-Ball Tourney

Miami, Fla., March 12 (AP)—Never up, never in.

Jug McSpaden and Byron Nelson headed the old golfing axiom yesterday and won the International four-ball tourney 8 and 6 from Denny Shute and Sammy Byrd.

"Willing" putters were credited with the victory by the "Gold Dust Twins" but to everyone else it was the way the two gambled on the greens.

Shute and Byrd appeared nervous and unsure and their putts frequently stopped short of the hole.

Apparently willing to take chances and holding a margin most of the time, the Gold Dusters either sank their putts or ran them up hole-high. The two used only nine putts on the first nine holes of the afternoon round, while Shute and Byrd took 17.

FOUR YEARS AGO TODAY
(By The Associated Press)
March 12, 1941—Russia and Thailand establish diplomatic relations. Factories in unoccupied France reported making invasion barges for German attack on Britain with Vichy approval; Germans use unoccupied French ports to receive shipments of supplies.

Fakirs are religious mendicants, common to all creeds of India.

Cataleptic attacks may last from a few minutes to several days.

CHAMBERSBURG, ALLENTOWN TO MEET TUESDAY

By TOM SHILLIVER
Harrisburg, March 12 (AP)—Three undefeated basketball teams are among the eleven district finalists who play tomorrow night in the first of the P. I. A. A. regional games leading to a state championship on March 24.

Huntingdon, District six titleholder, chalked up its 24th consecutive victory by defeating Johnstown in the district finals over the week-end; Plymouth ran its victory streak to 23 in a row by eliminating Swoyerville in the District 2 finals; while Shamokin made it 21 straight by turning back Sayre in District 4.

Allentown's only loss during the season was an overtime defeat by Bethlehem early in January; Chambersburg went through an 18 game campaign with only one setback at the hands of Scotland school. Sharpshooters lost four times during the year, but won when the games counted the most.

Games On Tuesday
Pairings for the first round of the statewide competition pit Plymouth against Shamokin Tuesday. Huntingdon plays Somerset.

Other first round games find Allentown moving against Chambersburg at Hershey and Bradford encountering unpredictable Sharpshooters.

Three district titles must still be decided in Class B with two on the schedule for tonight — McAdoo against West Wyoming at Kingston for District two honors; and Saxton against Stonycreek township at Everett for District five laurels.

The third finalist will be selected on Wednesday as Gallitzin and Gregg township meet at Altoona in District six.

Camp Hill moved into the District three title in Class B by crushing Susquehanna 56-25 on Saturday and Conneautville eliminated West Middlesex from District ten by a 38-27 margin.

The first of the Class B regional games will be played on Wednesday as Montgomery plays Dalton and Otto Township engages Conneautville.

SPORT SHORTS

Bombay, India, March 12 (AP)—A single lucky holder of a five-rupee ticket on yesterday's treble at the Bombay race track won 105,000 rupees, roughly equivalent to winning $30,000 for $2. The winner's name was not disclosed.

New York, March 12 (AP)—Champion Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, and Willie Hoppe, of New York, start play today in their challenge match for the three-cushion billiard title. After a week's play here the competition will shift to Boston and from there to Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Denver, Portland, Seattle, Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco.

Philadelphia, March 12 (AP)—Pitcher Al Gerberauer remained the only holdout as the Phillies prepared to leave for spring training at Wilmington, Del. General Manager Herb Pennock said his demands were "ridiculous" but did not explain them.

Philadelphia, March 12 (AP)—Gunder Haegg has been invited to run in the Penn relay April 27 and 28. Penn said invitations have gone out to 429 high schools, 230 colleges, 199 elementary schools, 135 parochial schools, 103 prep schools, 43 military organizations and 27 junior high schools.

New London, Conn., March 12 (AP)—Having won the Eastern Collegiate Boxing championship for the first time in the history of their school, members of the Coast Guard Academy's boxing team returned today to the important business of training to become officers of Uncle Sam's fighting ships.

Five of the eight members of the Coast Guard team won titles in the 22nd annual tournament. West Point, the defending champion, was second with three individual champions.

Player In Gambling Case Not A Student

New York, March 12 (AP)—Lawrence E. "Larry" Pearlstein, one of the five basketball players involved in the Brooklyn college gambling case in January, never was a registered student at the school, it was disclosed yesterday.

Edgar Bromberger, commissioner of investigation, made the disclosure in a supplemental report to Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia who had ordered a probe after the gambling scandal broke on January 29.

CAPTURE
Hickory, N. C., (AP)—Dawn came on the western front, Sgt. Robert Adams wrote his parents, and he tried to awaken his unknown fox-hole companion. Adams gave up and went to chow. When he returned he shouted again at his sleeping companion. This time the response was quick. It was—"Kamerad!"

Delone Cagers Face Scranton Quintet

Delone Catholic high school, champions of the Class A division of the Harrisburg diocese, will meet Scranton St. Mary's high on the Hanover floor Tuesday evening in the first of a series of playoffs to determine the state Catholic high champion.

Coch Eddie Waleski's quintet has won 18 of 24 games this season but recently was weakened by the loss of "Moose" Noel who has joined the armed forces.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLENTON, JR.
New York, March 12 (AP)—Back from an eastern tour, Bruce Drake, Oklahoma basketball coach, comes out with the opinion that "eastern officials come closer to calling fouls according to the rule book than officials from any other section."

Maybe the fact that eastern officials whistled 38 fouls against the Sooners in two games and only 23 against their opponents had something to do with it. Drake adds that standardization of officiating has improved 100 per cent in the past five years and gives most of the credit to "big time" double bills for bringing together officials, coaches and players from all over the nation. The Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast league have signed a one-armed outfielder, Pete Travis, for a trial. He led the Oakland, Calif., winter league in hitting.

DON'T SNEER AT SNEED
Back in 1937, when Sammy Sneed made his big-time golf debut at Los Angeles, his name was spelled "Sneed" throughout the tourney. That's supposed to be a notable example of the arrival of an "unknown" for misspelled Sneed finished sixth. . . . When Sammy won his sixth tourney of the winter at Jacksonville, Fla., recently, the name chalked boldly on his locker was "Sneed." . . . Sammy apparently didn't care as long as they got it right on the prize check.

MONDAY MATINEE
Henry Armstrong is "high" on his 14-year-old 98-pound protege from Salt Lake City, Keith Nuttall. "He hit me harder than John Thomas did," says Hank, "and I've made a vow I'm going to stick with the boxing game until I've made this fellow a champion." . . . Titan Hanover, first two-year-old trotter ever to step a mile in two minutes and champion in his class, set another record when he was insured for $50,000 by owner E. Roland Harrison. . . . The recent Detroit high school basketball title game, transferred from a 2,000 capacity school gym, drew 15,518 spectators at Olympia.

NO BACK SLAPPING
Fl. Benning, Ga., (AP)—Sgt. Melvin J. Kittleson, back from Attu, gave an account of his outfit's most unpopular member. A soldier found what appeared to be a stick of candy wrapped in red waxed paper in a Japanese machine gun nest. It tasted like candy. After he had eaten half the stick another soldier, familiar with Japanese print, identified it as dynamite. Kittleson said no one slapped the candy-lover on the back for several weeks.

HAEGG FIFTH ON SATURDAY

New York, March 12 (AP)—Haackan Lidman, Stockholm's hurdling sports editor, thinks Swedish track fans would go for indoor track competition but doubts that Swedish athletes could stand the strain of year-round competition.

Lidman, fourth in the 1936 Olympics and winner of a 60-yard exhibition a week ago, said today that his country has nothing to compare with the indoor track festivals common to his country.

But he points out that indoor competition might injure Sweden's domination of the outdoor, middle distance events.

"Gunder Haegg hasn't been able to win here because he is not in condition," he explained. Haegg was last on March 3 and fifth in a six-man field Saturday night in a pair of mile races, both of which were won by James Rafferty. Saturday's winning time was 4:16.3.

"To get in shape for those eight world records he set, Gunder started skiing in January, concentrated on cross-country running in February and March and tried for speed and form the next three months to be in shape for record exploits in August. I don't see how you can add a winter program to that," he explained.

The thigh bone is the longest and strongest in the body.

Training Season In Majors Opens

New York, March 12 (AP)—The major league baseball spring training season opened its fourth wartime campaign today on the heels of a proposal from Mayor Fiorello La Guardia that police in the big league cities exchange information in an effort to curb gambling on the sport.

Assuring followers of the Giants, Yankees and Dodgers in his weekly Sunday radio talk over WYNY that "we are going to keep baseball clean" La Guardia declared: "I want to try to arrange for exchange of identification and information with other cities where the big leagues play so that Philadelphia will know the New York thugs and thieves and we will know the Philadelphia thugs and thieves and likewise all of the cities on the circuit."

"We are going to be very, very tough with these racketeers," the mayor asserted. "Known gamblers will not be permitted within the Yankee stadium, Polo grounds and Ebbets field. Certain boxes around third base in one club and another box that I know of will be thoroughly disinfected even if I have to put Police Commissioner Valentine in the box."

Lineup For Court Tourney Incomplete

New York, March 12 (AP)—Two places still remained unsettled today to complete the lineup of 32 of the country's leading college quintets for four postseason basketball tourneys—the national invitation at Madison Square Garden, the Eastern and Western NCAA and National Intercollegiate at Kansas City.

Unbeaten Rensselaer Poly became the 8th and last team to fill the Garden invitation lineup, but New England officials still were trying a team to represent district one in the Eastern NCAA competition.

One place in the western NCAA hinges on outcome of a playoff between Washington State and Oregon.

The national invitation lineup includes:

National invitation—St. John's; 19-2; Muhlenberg 23-3; Tennessee 18-4; Rhode Island State 19-3; De Paul 18-2; Bowling Green 22-2; West Virginia 12-5; and Rensselaer 13-0.

THE ROAD TO BERLIN

- 1. Eastern front: 25 miles (from Seelow; German report).
- 2. Western front: 272 miles (from east of Remagen).
- 3. Italian front: 544 miles (from Reno river).
